

Msgr. Church among honorees

Msgr. James Church, right, pastor of St. Charles Borromeo Parish in Sacramento, and the Rev. Charles Warner, left, pastor of Christ Temple Apostolic Church in Sacramento, receive awards from Jim Keddy, director of Sacramento Area Congregations Together. Both pastors were among those attending a dinner honoring clergy who founded the community organizing group in the early 1990s.

Christian Brothers High School in Sacramento was the first place winner of the 26th Annual Moot Court competition held recently at Sacramento County Superior Court. Members of the Christian Brothers moot court team were seniors Catherine Lyons, Gary Miguel, Ryan King, Nick Cronenwett, Liz Nolan and Eric Chavez. Class moderator was teacher Greg Meegan. Lyons received special recognition as the overall best speaker. The competition requires that students study a theoretical Supreme Court case and prepare to argue the case from appellant and respondent positions. A panel of judges and attorneys question students and award points based on knowledge of materials, presentation skills, and strength of argument.
