

Bishop Manogue Epitaph

Volume XXI, Number 1

Bishop Manogue High School, Sacramento, CA

November 16, 1988

CARRIER FEATURE radio

Mark S. Allen: Back On His Feet Again

By Jennifer Henderson

Hey girls, this is Jennifer Henderson comin' to you live from 7th period Newspaper, where we are just rockin' n-rollin' with new, hot articles! One of the hottest articles on the chart this quarter is the interview with Mark S. Allen!

As Kathy Dunsmore and I arrived at his house, Mark appeared to be asleep on the couch watching the "All-New Gidget Show." As he opened the door in a daze, we were welcomed with a warm hello and a bright smile. We were also welcomed by his little puppy, Brad, and his cute little kitten, who continued to bite at our feet throughout the interview. Our interview started with the basics.

Jennifer: At what age did you get started?

Mark: Sixteen years old.

Jennifer: How did you get started in had a really distorted accent. John fixed that. I feel sorry for the people from the south because it makes them sound so stupid!

Jennifer: When you were in high school, were you involved in school activities?

Mark: When I was a freshman in high school, I broke my back playing basketball. I could no longer be involved in sports. I got involved in Theater Arts and learned how to express myself.

Jennifer: Why is it you like what you do?

Mark: It's a creative outlook for me, sometimes more than others. It's a chance to get that creative stuff out

Teenwork '88

with Mickey Mouse

By Amy Perry and Jasejo Green
Edited by Vandana Vingan

I, Amy Perry, am glad that I was privileged to go to Teenwork '88 in Anaheim, California. Teenwork '88 was the gathering of all the groups who are involved with the concept of help me understand the effects of drugs and alcohol and what to do to prevent their use. One of the things that most inspired me about his conference was how 800 teens from all over California had a terrific five days