

ATHLETICS

By Stephen R. O'Neil.

During the many years that the Brothers have taught in our city, few have equalled this in athletic activity.

Football had never been played at the College, and basketball for a while had been discontinued. When Harkness and Stanford Junior High School teams were formed, we had something to go after. At the beginning of the term Brothers Albian and Baldwin got the boys together for athletic purposes, started things going, and then in many ways helped them along. In all their plans, Brother Jasper co-operated. Funds were raised to carry on the sports by means of the "Store" and monthly dues from the members of the athletic club.

During the season we met defeats, but were not disheartened; we profited by our experience, fought clean, and in the end obtained victory.

About a month after the football season had opened, the boys of the Brothers College organized an American football team with Peter Mitchell as captain and Laurence Rouke as manager.

These two officers, with the help of Brother Albian, set to work to develop a team. They had no veterans, because there had been no team in previous years; another difficulty was that there were only a few large boys to choose from, and some of these did not want to play at first. Nevertheless, they started practice and arranged a game with Harkness. Three days before this game Brother Albian secured the services of Herbert ("Red") Bowden, veteran St. Mary's quarterback, to coach the team.

In the game with Harkness our boys were defeated 32-6. This was no disgrace, for at the last minute Peter Mitchell plunged over the line for our only touchdown, which showed we lost fighting. Harkness had been playing together for a long time under the coaching of Jim O'Connell. They showed their experience by some nifty trick plays which they worked on our ends, succeeding to get around many times. Doyle did some good tackling for us and by this prevented our opponents' score from going higher. The front line of the college team was light and rather weak in places, but held well, considering its being our first game.

American football was fast becoming popular around Sacramento, and Harkness, Stanford and the College arranged a series to determine who was the champion team of this weight. Bowden got the boys out every afternoon for a hard workout in signals and tackling. The team changed, about half of the places being filled by new men, making the team heavier. On November 28th the first game of the series was scheduled between Stanford and the Brothers College, the winner to play Harkness for the title.

Management

The College is conducted by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, a religious order, founded by St. John Baptist de la Salle, the Apostle of Popular Education. The Order is devoted exclusively to teaching and has the experience of centuries. The Brothers are trained to the work of education. It is their vocation, the sole object of their Society. Their success in their field of labor has been conceded both in this country and in Europe.

Object

The Christian Brothers College was established in 1876 for the purpose of imparting a thoroughly Christian and practical education; an education not only to prepare young men for an honorable position in life, but which will engage them to fulfill faithfully their duties as Christians, and thus make them good and useful members of society.

Location and Advantages

The location of the College is unsurpassed by any in the City of Sacramento. Opposite the college is the magnificent Cathedral of the Blessed Sacrament, a block removed is the State Capitol, with its extensive grounds and elegant parks. The class-rooms, dining-room and dormitories are large, lightsome and well ventilated. Owing to the proximity of the College to the State Capitol, the students have easy access to the Capitol Park and the State Library.

Discipline

As the Brothers are a religious order of teachers the public need hardly be assured that the utmost care is bestowed on the moral and religious training of those under their charge. The teachers rely mainly on paternal advice and moral influence to secure propriety of conduct, discipline in studies, and gentlemanly deportment. The Brothers, as far as possible, form a family circle with the students. Living in the same house, they preside at their recreations, and seated at the same table, and thus, without obtruding, give an air of refinement and a tone of morality to their actions. Care is taken that the pupils have all that is required for health and comfort, and that they enjoy all the advantages found in a well regulated family.

Reports and Studies

The college has four Departments: The primary, the grammar, the high school, and the commercial. Reports of the progress of the students are sent regularly to the parents or guardians. It is requested that these reports be carefully examined, as showing the exact standing of the students.

Diplomas are awarded to students who are proficient in the commercial branches.

Terms for Boarders

Board, tuition and laundry, per term of five months.....	$150.00
Instrumental music, per term of five months.....	25.00

Student's Outfit

Each student should have at least two or three suits of clothes, sufficient underwear, neckties, towels, handkerchiefs, combs, brushes, and other toilet articles, two or three pairs of shoes, two or three hats or caps.

For further particulars, apply to

BROTHER JASPER, Director.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

Start Your Boys in Right

The commercial department of the Christian Brothers College, is developed along lines tending to meet the needs of the greatest number of students in the shortest time consistent with good scholarship and the development of correct business habits. Many boys and young men have but a limited time to spend in securing an education; they want to fit themselves for clerical or semi-clerical positions; hence it is of great importance to them to make the best of their opportunities.

The college business course is shaped to give a practical and useful education. Theory occupies but a small portion of the student's time—just sufficient to lay a foundation for the practical part of the course. Accuracy, rapidity and neatness are considered essentials in a business education, hence special attention is given to these requirements.

The course includes bookkeeping, penmanship, shorthand, rapid calculation, arithmetic, typewriting, English, business letter writing and commercial law. The time required to complete the course corresponds with the first, second and third years of the high school.

The Brothers' boys are always in demand. They make good. Bankers, business men and railroad officials will testify to their efficiency. In school they learn to work. Fads are rigorously excluded. Time—the student's best asset—is never frittered away on useless or doubtful branches.

Past, Present and Future of the Christian Brothers College

By Peter Mitchell and Peter Mulligan.

AS SCHOOLS GO—even American Schools—the Christian Brothers College is still a comparatively young institution. But it is a tremendous institution, great, and growing, intensely alive, abreast of the times, and striving ever after new growth and new power, not resting upon its past reputation, which is such as no other institution of this beautiful Capital City can boast.

In 1876, while Sacramento was still in the Archdiocese of San Francisco, the Brothers came to this city. It was due to the active zeal of the Reverend Father Patrick Scanlan that the present site was acquired in the vicinity of the Cathedral.

The need of an educational establishment, wherein Catholic young men could receive instruction in their religion as well as in the affairs of men, was very noticeable in Sacramento at the time before the Brothers were invited. And the dedication of the college was a great blessing for such men; for when a boy attends this college he is taught the principles and manners of a gentleman—that is to respect God and Country at all times and always to be a source of pride to his Alma Mater.

In many parts of the world the college has devoted graduates who remember with a great deal more than pleasure, the years they spent at this institution which fostered them during those years in which they "found themselves," and laid the course for their voyage of life. These include many men who have written their names large in the world of affairs and of learning, classic scholars, engineers, architects, lawyers and men in public life, all of whom are a credit to their Alma Mater. Such men as the Reverend Father Hughes, Judge Peter Shields, Garret W. McEnerney, Judge Lennon and Judge F. O'Brien, are among the list of old boys who have spent many happy days in the shadows of the C. B. C., and who have taken up their calling in life and fulfilled their duties as only men of great ability can.

The College was founded in 1876, and was the masterpiece of William Kirk, the architect. It cost $14,700 exclusive of furniture and was considered by competent judges to be one of the best buildings in the State at that time. A. Hill was the builder. It was dedicated by the Most Reverend Archbishop Alemany, July 16, 1876. His Grace in his dedicatory address said: "I am happy and thankful to God for the consolation just afforded me in performing the pleasing ceremony of dedicating St. Patrick's Institute of the Christian Brothers in this city, and I pray to God that He may preserve this college, a fountain of knowledge and virtue—a true, lasting blessing to Sacramento." Such she has proved to be, and not only a blessing, but also a help, for when a business man of this city wishes to get the best educated young men for employees he looks toward the Brothers College.

Present at the dedication were such notable men as Gov. Irwin, Gen. Walsh, Mayor Green, the clergy and many others. About five thousand attended the ceremonies. A banquet was held after the dedication ceremonies and the College was handed over to the first faculty, which consisted of Brother Cianan, President, Brothers Alexander, Lammand, William, Wine-slaus, Finton, and Aloysius.

On Monday, July 17, 1876, the college opened its doors to receive pupils. When school commenced a week later, two hundred pupils had been enrolled. Steadily the work of the Brothers advanced and without blare of trumpet, the modest institution on the corner of Twelfth and K Streets soon manifested itself one of the foremost of learning in this city.

The courses offered to the youths of this city by this College at that time consisted of regular collegiate, literary, and commercial studies.

The first three commencements were held in the Assembly Chamber of the Capitol. His Excellency Governor Irwin, presided at the first two. The Board of Education in a body, and many State officials attended. These exercises were considered a grand success and augured well for the future of the College. Since then the people of Sacramento have been furnished for their approval, numerous commencement exercises which were held in the Metropolitan, Clunie and Grand Theaters, and in Cathedral Hall.

For many years the college was known as the Sacramento Institute; later it was changed to its present name.

The Right Reverend Patrick Manogue, D. D., and the Right Reverend Thomas Grace, D. D., have always given the college a whole-hearted support and taken a lively interest in all its works. One of the most pleasing memories in the history of the college is the cooperation that the Brothers received from the clergy of the Diocese.

The first president of our college, Brother Cianin, a man of rare tact, was especially fitted for the arduous work of founding a college. He was one of the eight pioneer Christian Brothers to California. In him were blended executive ability, senatorial dignity and apostolic simplicity. At three different times he was at the head of the school. This admirable religious was called to the reward of those that do and teach, February 5, 1897.

The beloved Brother Bertram was in charge from December 28, 1879, till August 28, 1880. He returned November 15, 1889, as Sub-Director, a position well suited for his retiring, philosophic disposition, and which he filled until he was called to Martinez in 1900. He is known among the old students as Brother "Sub."

By reiterated appeals, the saintly Brother Sabunian was successful on January 1, 1881, in laying aside the burden of the presidency. From 1881 to 1883 and from 1889 till 1892 Brother Bosinis directed the Sacramento Institute with energy, method and efficiency. One of the most fortunate days in the history of this institution was May Day, 1883, when Brother Genebern, another of the pioneers to California, became president. An educator of ardent zeal, he labored indefatigably here with lasting results and left November 20, 1886, to resume the presidency of Sacred Heart College, San Francisco.

The erudite Brother Walter was also local superior for two separate periods, namely, from July 12, 1894, to July 1, 1895; and from July 1, 1900, to August 6, 1906. After returning from the Mother House of his Order in Belgium, whither he had been called to do some special literary work, he was assigned to St. Vincent's, whence on December 5, 1907, after a brief illness, he went to his reward. After Brother Walter's first incumbency, came Brother Ambrose, a disciplinarian of no mean attainments. While on a voyage to France he was drowned, July 4, 1890, in the wreck of La Burgoyne.

Brother Vellesian then guided the destinies of the local institution until July 1, 1900, giving promise of the administrative ability that characterized his government of St. Mary's College. The energetic Brother Florinus was likewise at the helm twice, from August 6, 1906 to August 16, 1909; and from July 1, 1911 to July, 1914. It was he that increased the accommodation for boarding pupils at the college. After being a member of the faculty for five years, on August 8, 1909, Brother Leo, Master of Novices at Martinez, became president for two years.

Obedience, in August, 1914, called Brother George from the directorship of the school in Walla Walla to that of Sacramento. After a year of brilliant work here, he was made president of the college in Portland, Ore.

In years gone by the college has been represented in the social and athletic, as well as in educational activities. Her orchestra was a source of great pleasure to those that had the good fortune of hearing it, and the baseball teams, which the C. B. C. has developed were usually champions of the city at the national pastime. More than once they held the championship of Superior California, and it was no uncommon occurrence for the Green and White to come triumphant from an athletic struggle with the Sacramento High School. Basketball was in full swing in 1909, during which year the college never met defeat. Track teams of such great ability have been developed in the school that we have held the city banner twice.

The success of the Christian Brothers College is greatly due to its presidents and faculties. It would have been impossible for any one man to bring this college to the prestige that it undoubtedly enjoys. It has always been her good fortune to have in her class-rooms men convinced of their mission, sure of their methods, confident of success. Brothers Virgil, Henry, Paul, Udalrick, George, Timothy, Edmund, Xenophon, Ulfian, Zenonian, Lewis Agnon are a few of the other names large in our vista, and the vista of past students, when in reminiscent mood, we look back over the years that the old college has been doing its work in Sacramento.

This year held great things for this school, for not only were the intellectual activities at their best, but athletics were organized and supported by the students under the direction of Brother Albion.

At the Athletic Association's election, which followed Brother Jasper's highly favorable remarks, Edward Doyle was elected president, Peter Mitchell, vice-president, Leland Hill, secretary, and Edward Cain, treasurer. Meetings are held once a month, at which the business pertaining to athletics is discussed.

During this year debating has been firmly established. At a meeting held early in the year the instructor informed the boys that the ruling of the debating society was to be left largely in their hands and that the success of it depended upon them. At this meeting Peter Mulligan was elected president and Peter Mitchell, secretary. It was decided to call the organization the C. B. C. Debating Society. Under its auspices a debate has been held every two weeks. Oral composition has been established in the various high school classes.

The literary ability of the students has had many opportunities to advance this term by the monthly entertainments which were introduced last year and which are to give both pleasure and experience in public speaking. Testimonials are also awarded to those who have merited them.

After each entertainment the boys are given advice which is intended to help them both in their studies and in the forming of their character. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Grace, D. D., attended the February entertainment, and his remarks on the work of the Brothers and their boys were indeed encouraging.

The large service flag, containing over 70 stars, was unfurled to the breeze this year, as a means of showing to the people of Sacramento that men formerly of the C. B. C. are doing their bit either in the army or navy.

The property on which the college stands has so increased in value that a new and beautiful establishment, consisting of three buildings is contemplated.

This will accommodate twelve Brothers and fifty boarders and about 300 day scholars.

In erecting this school the physical as well as the intellectual and moral education of the students will receive great attention. The school rooms and dormitories will be modern in every respect, and when completed will bid fair to be one of the best equipped and modern schools in California.

The site will include a large campus with all things necessary for the outdoor training of the pupils—baseball diamonds, basketball courts and running track.

Indoor physical training will not be neglected, and in one of the buildings will be a thoroughly equipped gymnasium.

Such a location, removed from the business section of the city could not but be beneficial to the intellectual and physical well-being of the boys. It is not only intended as a school for the students, but as a place where the old graduates may gather and recall the days spent at their Alma Mater.

The Brothers are awaiting a purchaser for the present site before beginning work on the new school, and it is the prayer of both Brothers and boys that this work will not be long delayed.

The Reverend William Hughes

The Reverend William Hughes, born in Sacramento, January 17, 1880, received his general education at Christian Brothers College, Sacramento, and at St. Mary's College, Oakland, where he was graduated June, 1900. His ecclesiastical training was received in the Sulpician Seminary, Baltimore. He was ordained in Los Angeles, August 14, 1905, by the Right Reverend Bishop Conaty. His first appointment was to the curacy of St. Agnes Church where he remained for two years. He was then attached to the parish of San Jacinto, while learning the Indian language at Saboba. This was a preparation for his work in connection with the bureau of Indian Missions under the direction of the Reverend Father Ketchem. For six years Father Hughes traveled through a large part of the United States lecturing for the Indian Missions. He received the degree of Master of Arts in 1910 from St. Mary's College, Oakland. He delivered, in 1914, the address to the graduates of the Christian Brothers College, Sacramento. After being pastor of Coalinga for two years, he joined the army and was assigned to a chaplaincy at Camp Pike, Arkansas, with the rank of lieutenant. He expects to be sent to Europe in the near future.

Chas. A. Teutschel

Fred Murphy

Charles A. Teutschel, born January 19, 1898, in Broderick, Yolo County, Cal., started his education at the Christian Brothers College in September, 1904, continuing until June, 1914. Attended no other school. Graduated in 1914; the same year won the Knights of Columbus Gold Medal for Christian Doctrine. Was President of the Cathedral Sanctuary Society during the term 1913-14. Since that time has been in the constant employ of the Southern Pacific Co., where he has performed his duties with due credit to the Christian Brothers.

Now acting President of Junipero Serra Council No. 14, Young Men's Institute, in place of his brother who was called into the service of his country.

Fred Murphy, the subject of this sketch, was born in Sacramento November 12, 1897. He was a student at the Christian Brothers' College for many years. During his attendance at school he was a close student and a lover of athletics. He became manager of the Buicks, champions of the Playground League in 1909. Shortly after this he was selected to be the manager of the the All-Star Playground League in 1911. Later he became manager of the Y. M. I. baseball team, champions of Northern California, for the season of 1918. Fred has always shown himself to be loyal to his Alma Mater. At present he is an employee of the Sacramento Bank and from all reports is giving entire satisfaction.

RYAN, FRANK D. (Francis De Sales), son of John C. and Maria (Lyons) Ryan; was born May 11, 1895, in Sacramento; died January 9, 1908; was educated in the public schools and Christian Brothers College of Sacramento; graduated from St. Mary's College, Oakland, in 1878; studied law in the office of Judge R. C. Clark of Sacramento, and was admitted to the bar in 1880; married Miss Ella Bontwell of Sacramento, November 25, 1883; children: Frank D. (Francis de Sales) Jr., Estelle, Ruth, Irene; was elected member of the State Assembly in 1882, at the age of twenty-three, and was the youngest member of the Assembly at the time; clerk of the Assembly, 1885-1887; served

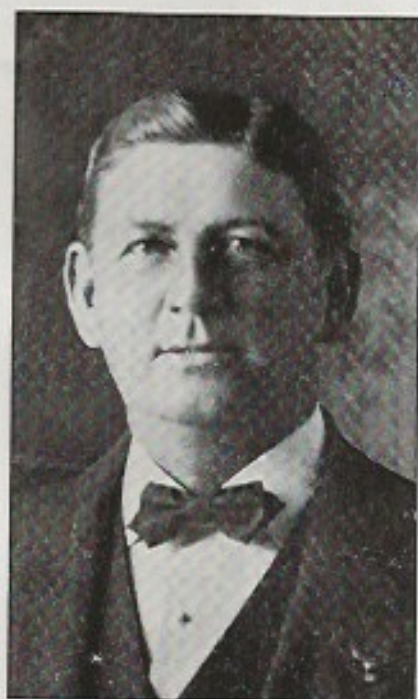

HONORABLE PETER J. SHIELDS

At Mills, Sacramento County, Cal., April 4, 1862, Honorable Peter J. Shields was born and there received his elementary training in the district school. He was among the first students to enroll at the opening of the Brothers College. He was graduated in 1879, and today, forty-three years ago, he has pleasant memories of his teachers, especially of Brother Alexander, our first Vice President, whom he admired for his gifts of head and heart. Judge Shields' interest in things agricultural, educational and political bears out the opinion that our country boys are to be our future leaders. His erudition and integrity have well fitted him for the following honorable positions which he has held: Trustee of State Library, 1885 and 1896; Deputy State Librarian, 1895; Secretary Code Commission, 1896; Private Secretary to Governor James H. Budd, 1897; Secretary State Board of Agriculture, 1899; Judge of Sacramento County, 1900 to date; member of State Bar Association; Director Sacramento

Chamber of Commerce; former President California Dairy Association, two terms; leader of the movement to extend the scope of Davis Farm, and author of the bill creating this school.

The Judge, by word and example, is doing everything in his power as becomes a loyal citizen and public official to instill intelligent patriotism into the hearts of the people. His bent towards political economy leads him to urge food conservation upon his large and admiring audiences.

"His eye, heart and hand
Are for his fatherland."

Elect

T. B. Hagerty for County Constable

Our genial County Constable, Mr. T. B. Hagerty, was born in Jersey City, 1868, and came to Sacramento with his parents in 1871. He attended the Brothers College, graduating with the class of 1879. On leaving school he went to work for the Southern Pacific Company, but the need of competent men to look after the prisoners at Folsom prompted him to accept a position as guard. His knowledge of human nature and the wisdom he showed in handling criminals led the late D. Reese to take him into the Sheriff's office, where he remained for four years, when he was elected by the people of Sacramento to his present position. Because Mr. Hagerty lives up to his belief, "Justice to all, malice to none," he is deserving of your support August 27. His motto is: "Performance is better than promises."

The Brothers Novitiate

By Peter Mitchell

IN selecting the present site of the novitiate of the Brothers of the Christian Schools, Brother Justin showed a taste for the beautiful. It is situated in Contra Costa County, not far from the city of Martinez.

The grounds, seventy acres in extent, were laid out by Brother Pirmian, to whom most of the artificial beauty of the present location is due. From the summit of Mt. Hope, which is in the Brothers property, a person can gain an inspiring view of the surrounding country. To the northeast as far as the eye can reach stretch the silver gleam of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. Directly to the north one can behold the Bay of Suisun and Straits of Carquinez outlined on the west by an almost perfect semi-circle. The gigantic Solano is seen in mid-stream carrying trains between Benicia and Port Costa. To the west the verdant hills seem to guard the fertile Alhambra Valley from the Pacific fogs that occasionally hang on the hill tops, but dare not descend. To the south, in Spring, a Santa Fe train rolls through a waving sea of orchard bloom which breaks the pride of its swells at the foot of Mt. Diablo.

The hand of industry has somewhat marred the beauty of the scene immediately in front of the Brothers' property. But this is not without its recompense, for the coming of the Shell Oil Company has brought an increase of population to Martinez.

From 1870 till 1879 the novitiate had been attached to St. Joseph's Academy, Oakland, but the growing attendance at the academy lead the Brothers to look for another site. The present location is not only beautiful, it is also salubrious.

In 1880 the first building which housed the Brothers on the present site became inadequate, so it was necessary to erect another building. Again in 1902 the home of the children of St. de la Salle was enlarged to twice its original size.

Brother Pirmian, who laid out the grounds, directed the novitiate till 1890, when he turned over his important work to Brother Theodorus. Brothers Jasper and Edward were also masters of novices. Brother Leo has held that position for the past six years. Brothers William, Udalrick, Victor, Aldrick, Edmund, Matthew, Nicholas, and Luke have directed the affairs of the separate departments. Other names attached to the teaching staff are Brothers Justin, Lactain, and Baptist.

The junior novices, boys under the age of sixteen, are guided by Brother Paulian. Brother Udalrick, a past member of our community, now directs the aged Brothers, who have come to Martinez to rest after years spent in the labors of the Lord.

The acreage surrounding the novitiate is devoted partly to farming. There are also an olive and a fruit orchard. Altar wine in a limited quantity is manufactured here.

Overlooking Carquinez Straits is the little cemetery in which are buried a score of Brothers who "after life's fitful fever, sleep well."
