March 23, 1976

To the Centennial Year Faculty and Student Body of Christian Brothers High School, Sacramento, California:

Congratulations on one hundred years of distinguished accomplishment in Christian Education for the citizens of Sacramento and the West! The people of Sacramento have continuously supported Christian Brothers High School, from the planning stages in the 1870's to its continued development now in 1976 as the 100th class is about to graduate. And the people of Sacramento and surrounding areas have continuously appreciated the educational program offered at Christian Brothers High School, with the emphasis on academic excellence, on proper and well-defined discipline and on moral and ethical values taught as part of Catholic doctrine and the tradition of the Christian Brothers.

Three hundred years ago in Paris a young man studying for his doctorate became increasingly aware of the need to educate the young and how neglected they were in his time. That man, St. John Baptist de la Salle, founded the Christian Brothers in 1679 and the successors of those first brothers came to California in 1868, and to Sacramento in 1876. The traditions of those early brothers have been implanted in countless men who passed through Christian Brothers High School in Sacramento, and those traditions are being continued today by the present faculty of devoted and competent Brothers and laypersons.

That Christian Brothers High School has something special to offer and does in fact offer something special is attested to by the fact that the school was constructed without tax dollars from nation, state or city, but only from donations given by interested people and from funds made available by the Catholic Diocese and the Christian Brothers. The operating expenses of the school are aided in no way by tax dollars, but complete support comes from the parents of the students, the Catholic Diocese of Sacramento and the Christian Brothers.

This coming year Christian Brothers High School anticipates the largest enrollment in the history of the school. This itself is an indication of the support being given to the well planned educational program and the confidence that parents and students have in the administration and faculty.

As we thank God for His blessings on this student body and faculty over the past one hundred years, let us join in asking His continued guidance so that Christian Brothers High School may continue to serve the Nation, the State, the City and the People of God.

Sincerely yours,

Brother Raphael Willeke, F.S.C.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERS: A CENTURY OF SERVICE

One hundred years! A long time, indeed, since an energetic young maiden lady, named Maggie Cunningham saw her fund-raising efforts brought to fruition with the opening of what has, at various times, been known as St. Patrick's Institute, The Sacramento Institute, Christian Brothers College, Christian Brothers School, Bishop Armstrong High School . . . and hopefully last . . . Christian Brothers High School.

The reasons behind the establishing of a school by the sons of St. John Baptist de la Salle, the Christian Brothers, in Sacramento were basically two: The desire by Catholics to provide a religious education for their children and general dissatisfaction with quality public education as it then existed. Accomplishing this task took a good five years.

Finally the impetus from Father Patrick Scanlan and doorbell ringing and arm-twisting by Miss Maggie Cunningham, the great day arrived . . . establishing the first High School in Sacramento offering both academic and commercial classes. Officially known as St. Patrick's Institute after the patron saint of Sacramento (then Grass Valley) Diocese, the school was dedicated July 16, 1876 by Archbishop Joseph Alemany. The next day the brothers began enrolling students and by the following Monday . . . July 24th . . . 200 students began their first classes. They wasted no time in those days.

What sort of school was it that opened its doors in the nation's centennial year at 12th & K Streets on the site that is now Weinstocks department store? There were all of four classrooms with seats for 260 students. The most basic division problem indicates the teacher-pupil ratio was such as to put to the acid test even the renowned disciplinary talents of the seven brothers who took over the new building. For each classroom there was furnished, according to contemporary accounts, a teachers desk and revolving chair. With classes averaging over 60 students, the later were probably kept in perpetual spin. All of this required the expenditure of $24,000, a substantial sum for that day. In just 10 months after its opening, the school conferred its first diplomas . . . two, to be exact . . . in the Assembly Chamber of the Capitol, just two blocks away, with Governor William Irwin presiding.

During the next two decades the school . . . still known as Sacramento Institute . . . thrived until, in 1896 and at the urging of Bishop Thomas Grace of Sacramento, it became Christian Brothers College. The term "college" was not inappropriate, for in those days it was possible for a student to spend his years from the first grade through three years of college right there at 12th & K Streets before . . . if he wished a degree . . . transferring to Saint Mary's College. Thus it was that the concept of the junior college came a reality to the Sacramento area in the hands of the brothers a good twenty years before Sacramento Junior College, as an adjunct of Sacramento High School, began offering post-secondary courses.

Brother Cianin, founding director-principal, was succeeded by members of his institute whose names . . . Bertram, Sabinian, Genebren and Victor Ambrose . . . are now footnotes to history. In 1900 Brother Vellesian came onto the scene only to return years later in the 1920's to preside over the construction of the "new school" at 21st & Y Streets. The history of the school in these early years is minimal in detail, perhaps because, as Brother Lewis noted with a rare touch of asperity, "Brothers Florinus Peter, V. Leo, and Jasper kept poor records." Maybe, by way of excuse, they were just too busy trying to keep board nailed to board in a crumbling edifice.

The downtown school was falling apart and the commercially valuable property . . . still owned by the diocese . . . was sold. This put Brother Vellesian, his faculty, and student body in a position that was, at best, somewhat awkward. The property had to be vacated by June of 1923, and it would take a series of miracles to have a new school ready for the start of classes in August. Vellesian, a practical man, preferred to depend on his own resources rather than tax divine providence. The result was a move to the abandoned East Sacramento Public School building at 39th & J Streets, where Sacred Heart Church now stands.

It took seven months to iron out the details of construction which advanced at a break neck pace: The contract was let on Feb. 4, 1924; ground was broken on Feb. 11th, the cornerstone laid on May 18th, and students were in their classrooms and brothers and boarders in their living quarters on Sept. 15th. It would seem Brother Vellesian did have his miracle of sorts. The curriculum having been reduced some years before to eliminate college level courses, the school officially became known as Christian Brothers School on Nov. 5, 1924.

The thirties saw an athletic program reach an even par with other schools of the area. The gridgers, under young Jim Flynn, were able to stun Sac High's purple dragons two years hard-running (at which point Sac High followed the only sensible course and hired Flynn), and Henry "Bud" Hana's basketball and baseball teams played all comers on even terms.

It was during the depression years that the school suffered a premature aging process when maintenance money was just not there, the well loved Brother Patrick kept the boiler together with bailing wire, and magic to provide heat for the classrooms. Meanwhile, the Brothers, on too many mornings, were shaving with cold water. Brother Patrick was also responsible for a major curriculum revision that revitalized the academic program of the school.

The toll of time was felt simultaneously by Christian Brothers, and the two girls high schools . . . St. Joseph & St. Francis . . . and thus it was in 1957 Bishop Armstrong High School, a co-institutional experiment in Catholic secondary education was opened, and old Christian Brothers remained as a feeder school, offering freshman and sophomore classes only, and it appeared that never again would a diploma bear the name "Christian Brothers."

Tradition finally was served . . . and restored . . . in 1964, when two new four year high schools for girls made it, once again, possible for a four-year high school (grammar school classes had been discontinued in 1957) under the Christian Brothers to exist in Sacramento. The culmination was the restoration of the old name, in 1968, with the addition of one word: Christian Brothers High School.

The "old boys" from the Sacramento Institute are gone now and the ranks of those who still call it the "Brothers College" are thinning. But the graduates, young and old, will still agree to a man that what Daniel Webster once said in arguing the famous Dartmouth College case also applies to this alma mater:

. . . it is a small school, but there are those who love it . . ."

indeed there are . . . they number in the thousands.

Fond Memories, 1907-1918

Twelve years with the Christian Brothers in the old, wooden, three-storied, Georgian-style school-house at Twelfth and K Streets. "Readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic" to the tune of an ever-evident, but but seldom-used, hickory stick . . . spelling by rote, circles and spirals of Palmer Method penmanship. Catechism, preceded by three decades of the rosary, began every day.

I remember Brother Jasper as a thin, ascetic man who was the disciplinarian, but wholly fair, with an evident desire to help "his boys." He provided us with a guidepost in life: "Once a Brothers' boy, always a Brothers' boy."

The director of the commercial (business) department was Brother Euphrasius, who found escape from the routine of journals and ledgers as the drama instructor. He was forever putting on spectacular stage productions. Often, the public performance required nothing less than the acquisition of the Clunie or the Grand Theater, the only playhouses in town. Br. Euphrasius' strategy was to have every available student appear on stage at some time during the performance — lots of spear carriers and mob scenes. That way, all the relatives and friends purchased tickets and a full house was assured to help the slim finances of the school.

Because of a sincere sense of personal gratitude, Brother Alban lingers in my memory as a summary of all the Brothers. His encouragement, advice, and friendship was responsible for many Brothers' Boys making the grade.

This was all a long time ago. So much of it is gone. But, a priceless heritage remains. "Once a Brothers' boy, always a Brothers' boy."

The History of the La Salle Club

One of the vital forces behind the athletic program at Christian Brothers since 1939 is the La Salle Club. This organization was the brainchild of Brother Eugene Ward, former principal, teacher, coach, and public relations expert at CBS.

Another man who was instrumental in founding the La Salle Club was Cy Puliz. Many preliminary meetings were held in the basement of his house.

With approval of Brother Cyril, then principal, and Brother Bertram, vice-principal, the La Salle Club became an active fund-raising organization. Its early fund-raisers included the Annual Duck Stew, Boxer's Night, Soccer Night, and Baseball Night.

From the early formulative meetings, several men were very active in supporting the club. These men were William McQuillan, first president of the club, Joe Babich, Cy Puliz, Tom Armstrong, Dr. Leo Farrell, Tom Kenny, Bill Flaherty, Terry Mulligan, Jack Ryan, John Mason, and Ed Lehtola. Two members of the club, Heinie Finklestein, a member of the Jewish faith, and Harold Matthews, an active member of the Masonic Lodge, were men from different backgrounds who believed in the Christian education as provided by the Christian Brothers.

The La Salle Club continues to provide the young men attending Christian Brothers with a strong program in physical education and interscholastic activities through its many fund-raising activities. These include the La Salle Frolic, the Annual Golf Tournament, and the Annual La Salle Baseball Hall of Fame Dinner.

CB Sports Through the Years

Christian Brothers College was represented on athletic fields for many years without a recognized coach. That was changed in 1919 when Peter Mitchell accepted the task of coaching football, basketball, and baseball, along with teaching classes.

Mitchell's coaching was for free. The distinction of being the first paid member went to Paul O'Neil. The amount O'Neil was paid is unknown. Perhaps it's just as well.

In recent years, the Falcons have enjoyed considerable success on the gridiron. Dick Sperbeck's coaching record for the last eight years is 58-18-5 during which his team won the Metro title in four of the last six campaigns.

The first-ever league title came during Rey Clemons' tenure while the Gaels were in the Northern Interstate Athletic Conference. Brothers was allowed to compete in the Metro League in 1964 after a San Joaquin Section ban against nonpublic schools was lifted — capping a long battle spearheaded by E. J. "Bud" Keema, then superintendent of Grant Joint Union School District.

As for basketball, the team advancing the farthest was the Hanna-coached 1939-40 cagers, who captured the Northern California Catholic High School Tournament at St. Mary's.

Christian Brothers baseball has produced many outstanding performers who starred in semi-pro and pro ball, including major leaguers like Walter "The Great" Mails, Joe Marty, Schanz, Wally Westlake, Joe Kirrene, Don Semon, and John McNamara, who manages the San Diego Padres.

Present Falcon athletes and others destined to play roles in the second century of the Christian Brothers in Sacramento may be assured that the men who gained Gael glory in bygone eras realize happily that theirs is but a small fraction of what lies ahead.

Friends of the Brothers

TOWARD OUR SECOND CENTURY

Today, Christian Brothers High School continues its proud service to the broad spectrum of people that comprise Sacramento. CBS continues an educational program that is based on the message of Christ, the inherent dignity of the individual as brothers in Christ, and the need for a thorough liberal education to form the christian political man of tomorrow.

As has been true in the past one hundred years, in the present, Christian Brothers is looking forward and planning how better to serve the Church, people, and students of the future, while maintaining those ideals and principles that have been at the heart of Christian Brothers education for a century and was the heart of the inspiration of St. John Baptist de La Salle.

As we move into the second century of service we must also now look to the Sacramento community for continued and intensified support, for it is your work and backing, both spiritual and financial, that will write the future of CBS.

It is therefore, with great pride that I thank very sincerely the members of the Executive Committee for Christian Brothers High School for their months of work in formulating the Board of Regents.
